SECURITY POLICY

The Management of ECL is committed to the security of its personnel and properties. The damage or loss of any material, equipment and possible breakdown of law and order has a great impact on costs to the Client and Contractor.

ECL shall identify, evaluate and manage the risk to personnel arising from malicious practices, crime, civil disorder or armed conflict.

THIS POLICY IMPLIES THAT:

- In the unforeseen occurrence of violence or threats to life and property we would expect the forces of law and order of the state to give us appropriate protection. The right to use force rests with the state. In pursuance of the mission and objectives of the security management system, line management will draw on the services of ECL Security Department and, through the Nigerian Police Force and other Nigerian Security Organizations as required subject to conditions (ii) and (iii) below.
- ECL will not operate in an environment where the continuous deployment of military or Para-military forces is required to comply with the above policy, except where deployment is at the instance of Government for protection of key national facilities.
- Where the lives of personnel are at risk, ECL recognizes that the deployment of military or Para-military forces by the government, in support of the police and civil authorities, may be necessary for as long as is required to restore law and order, if protection cannot be achieved by other means
